Customer support specialist

About me

During my previous role as a Sales Representative at Kivork, my primary responsibility was to connect with customers to thoroughly understand their individual needs and then recommend tailored solutions that would best address those requirements. I placed a strong emphasis on building a positive rapport with each customer to foster trust and open communication. Furthermore, a key aspect of my role involved clearly and persuasively presenting the value and benefits of our products and services. Through these efforts, I consistently met and often exceeded established sales targets.
